1) China's population

- China's population fell last year for the first time in six decades, a historic turn that is expected to mark the start of a long period of decline in its citizen numbers with profound implications for its economy.
- The drop, the worst since the Great Famine of 1961, also lends weight to predictions that India will become the world's most populous nation in this year.
- The population dropped by roughly 850,000 to 1.41175 billion at the end of 2022. Long-term, UN experts see China's population shrinking by 109 million by 2050, more than triple the decline of their previous forecast in 2019.
